

Resumes & Professional Letters

It's important to remember that your resume, cover letter and thank you letters are designed to be marketing tools for you. The purpose of each is to present your qualifications in the best light possible and entice an employer to interview you. Regardless of the style and format you choose, all resumes and professional letters should contain certain information and be consistent.

Personal Data

- Include name, permanent and local addresses, phone number, and an appropriate e-mail address.

Objective

- Not required, but strongly encouraged to clarify skills and short-term career goals, should be somewhat specific.
- Required when searching for a co-op or internship and should include start date.
- Use phrases to indicate position desired or areas of interest.
- Avoid general statements and terms such as: opportunity for advancement, a challenging position, a position dealing with people, or a progressive company. Focus should be on contributions to the company (why you would be an asset).

Education

- Begin with your most recent education and experience. Typically Texas A&M.
- Provide name and location (city & state) of college or university; degree received, major & minor; month & year of graduation, and overall GPR.
- May include relevant, specialized coursework (i.e. minor coursework or electives), but list no more than 4-6 important classes.
- Include schools from which you received a degree. If you transferred from a junior or community college, or received credit for 30 or more hours, you can include this, with GPR.
- Include high school, if a freshman or sophomore, but replace with more updated and relevant information as involvement increases.
- Provide amount, if over 50%, of financial support provided through scholarships, grants, loans and/or employment.
- Include honors received, Dean's List, class rank, awards, and scholarships. List these in a separate "Honors" category if there are multiple items to include.

Experience

- List full-time, part-time, internships, or co-op jobs.
- Include company or organization name, city and state of location, your job title, and dates of employment.
- Describe your accomplishments and duties using phrases beginning with action verbs in present or past tense depending on the time of the experience.
- List most relevant experience first, then list in reverse chronological order, with the most recent dates next.

Leadership

- List your professional affiliations, clubs/organizations, campus activities, and dates of involvement.
- Include any offices you held or committees you chaired.
- A brief description of an activity may be necessary. Explain any A&M specific terms, such as, Fish Camp Counselor.
- Describe your accomplishments and duties within the organizations focusing on the results of your accomplishments.

Activities

- List activities, organizations in which you are a member, but do not serve in a leadership role.
- A brief description may be necessary if the group or activity is not well-known.

Skills & Languages

- Include any technical skills such as computer software applications, hardware, laboratory skills and/or languages.
- List level of foreign language proficiency.

Other Categories

- Can be used to demonstrate valuable attributes. For example: publications and presentations, relevant projects completed, special training, professional licenses or certifications.
- International students should include their visa status.

Length

- Bachelor's level resumes should be only one page. Resumes for graduate students can be two pages and can include publications and presentations. Resumes for any degree level targeted for federal and state employment may exceed these page limits.

References

- A statement "References upon request" is common but not necessary or recommended.
- For the interview, have references available on a separate sheet with the same header as your resume.

Resume Writing Tips

- Arrange categories/sections in order of relevance, presenting your most marketable information first.
- Use brief, descriptive phrases instead of complete sentences.
- Select action verbs that illustrate your skills and experience.
- Do not use personal pronouns such as I, me, my, their.
- Focus on results, accomplishments, and skills that demonstrate you have the qualifications to be successful at the job. Highlight higher order skills as opposed to just listing daily tasks.
- Avoid repetitive phrases when describing your experience.
- Describe activities that employers may not be familiar with, especially those unique to Texas A&M University. Instead of using abbreviations or acronyms for organizations, write the entire name of the group.
- Have several people review your resume to check for spelling, grammatical errors, and readability.

Appearance Checklist

- Make sure the resume is concise and easy to read.
- Use a consistent font throughout the resume. Fonts such as Times and Arial are professional in appearance and easy to read. The text in the body of the resume should be 10-11 point. Headings can be 12 point, with your name between 14 and 16 point.
- Use bold print to highlight each section or heading. However, avoid excessive use of underline, italics, and bold. This adds unneeded emphasis and may make the information difficult to read. Margins should be set at 1" on all sides. If you need additional space, reduce the top and bottom margins first. All margins should never be smaller than .7 or .8".

- Always use high quality paper.
- Print the resume in black ink only and use a high quality text printer.
- Limit resume to one page, if an undergraduate. Often a second page is essential for extensive work and relevant details for the Master or PhD level student. Be sure to place the most relevant experience on the first page.
- Have someone else proofread for spelling and grammar for you.
Do not rely on spell-check to correct errors!

Format Options

Chronological

Recommended for most college students, this format focuses on work history and experiences. List most relevant activities first, starting with the most recent. Remember to list internships and co-ops before part-time work, even if part-time work is more recent.

Functional

A functional resume focuses on skills developed through experiences. Typically, this format is recommended only for those candidates with extensive full-time work experience.

Combination

This format incorporates aspects of both the chronological and functional resumes. It allows you to provide descriptive information about your work history while highlighting specific skills.

Scannable

Scannable resumes can be either chronological, functional or a combination of the two. This format has specific parameters that allow it to be easily scanned and interpreted by various computer programs for key words.

Tips for Scannable Resumes

- Start each page of a scannable resume with your name.
- Use a 10-14-point non-decorative font, such as Arial, Courier or Times New Roman.
- Do not compress spacing between letters.
- Avoid bullets, hyphens, and dashes.
- Do not use columns when formatting your resume.
- Avoid graphics, boxes, underlining, and shading.
- Do not use italics or script print.
- Spell out words such as "percent" and "and" instead of using symbols such as "%" and "&"
- Use key words or short phrases, especially buzzwords related to the industry in which you are seeking a position.
- Describe your experience using nouns instead of verbs.
- Do not fold or staple.

Common Concerns

GPR - What do you do if your GPR is low?

Always put your overall GPR on your resume. By not including it on your resume, an employer may assume your GPR is lower than it actually is. In addition to the overall GPR, you can focus on a particular part of your GPR that might be more appealing. For example, list your major GPR or GPR for the last 60 hours of coursework completed. List major GPR first if higher.

Lack of Experience - What if your work experience is lacking?

Focus on skills you have gained through other activities, such as class projects, volunteer work, and student organizations.

References - How do you format an impressive reference list?

- Have a separate sheet of references available, with the same header as your resume.
- Use the same quality of paper as used for your resume.
- Include 3 to 5 references. At least one academic reference, such as a professor. At least one work-related reference, such as a former supervisor.
- Do not use family members or friends as references.
- Include the reference's name, address, e-mail, phone number, company/organization and job title as well as how known.
- Ask permission to use people as references and give them a copy of your resume, and cover letter if relevant. This allows them to be informed of your goals and what information the potential employer has seen.

Action Verbs

Use Action Verbs when describing your experiences/accomplishments on your resume, in your cover letters, and during your interviews. Skills you will bring to an employer can be categorized into three groups: how you interact with people, things, and ideas.

Cover Letter

Introduction

The primary purpose of the cover letter is to:

- Provide more detailed information to support the knowledge, skills, and abilities listed on your resume.
- Serve as an introduction, enticing prospective employers to review your resume.
- Allow you to tailor your application to the specific job for which you are applying.

The cover letter provides an opportunity to let an employer hear your voice. It reflects your personality, your attention to detail, your communication skills, your enthusiasm, your intellect, and your specific interest in the position.

Content

- Your cover letter and resume usually provide all the information which a prospective employer will use to decide whether or not you will be asked to interview.
- Cover letters should be tailored to each organization to which you are applying. The letter should indicate the position for which you are applying and how you learned of the employment opportunity. In addition, your letter should include specific details about why you are interested in that particular company and position, and should provide answers to the following:
 - o Why do you want to work for this organization?
 - o Why do you 'fit' with this organization?
 - o What are your qualifications for this position?
- The cover letter should also highlight the most important and relevant accomplishments, skills, and experience listed in your resume. It should also request specific follow up, such as an interview.

Format

- A cover letter should be addressed to the specific company and typically the most important recruiting contact, the hiring manager.
- The letter should be no longer than one page, in paragraph form with a conversational, though formal, tone.
- In your first paragraph, state your reason for writing the letter, including the position or type of work for which you are applying, your interest in the organization, and from which source you learned of the opportunity.

- The body of your letter should consist of one to three longer paragraphs in which you expand upon your qualifications for the position. Include your education, planned completion date and any highlights. Pick out the most relevant qualifications listed in your resume and discuss them in detail, demonstrating how your background and experience qualify you for the job. Be as specific as possible, and refer the reader to your resume for additional details.
- The concluding paragraph of your letter should indicate what you want to happen next, most likely an interview. State where and when you can be reached, and express your willingness to come to an interview or supply further information. Close by thanking your reader for his or her time and consideration.

Cover Letter Outline

A resume should always be accompanied by a cover letter, unless you are handing it directly to someone or applying through our online system. When emailing a cover letter and resume, make the cover letter the text within your email and attach your resume.

The employer will evaluate you as prospective employee based upon the appearance, content, grammar and punctuation errors in your cover letter.

Dear Mr./Ms. _____:

1st paragraph - Explain why you are submitting your resume. State the position for which you are applying. Mention how you heard about the opening: newspaper, name of person who referred you, etc. (basically, who you are, what you want and why).

2nd paragraph - State why you would be qualified for the position; mention specific qualifications or experiences you have that may be pertinent to the position. Tell of any particular interest you have in the company, location, or position. Point out relevant information that may not appear in your resume.

3rd paragraph - Express interest in an interview; indicate best time to contact you or suggest you will call to set up an interview time. Your closing should encourage a specific action by the reader.

Sincerely,

Writing Tips

- Create an original letter for each organization. Although parts of each letter will be similar, include specific details about the organization and position to stress your interest and enthusiasm.
- Review the contact information to make sure your letter is addressed correctly. If you are unsure of the recipient's gender, for example, confirm that information prior to sending.
- Proofread the letter and have at least one other person review it as well. Remember that the Career Center offers this service during walk-in advising in room 209 Koldus.
- Include accomplishments in the cover letter instead of listing responsibilities and duties.
- Close the letter with your action plan, specifically stating your intent to follow up with the letter's recipient.

Cover Letter Example

Each letter should be prepared individually; using form letters is not advised. Address letters to the individual directly involved in interviewing candidates; make every effort to discover the name of the person who will make the hiring decision.

Ms. Jane Davis, Vice President
XYZ Corporation
1234 Business Plaza
Houston, TX 77123

Dear Ms. Davis:

I appreciated the opportunity to learn more about XYZ Corporation during your campus information session on July 8, 20xx. As a senior Sociology major at Texas A&M, I was impressed by XYZ's commitment to community partnerships and your reputation as a leader in your field. I also enjoyed the opportunity to speak with several former students currently working at XYZ, including John Smith, who enthusiastically described the variety of projects he has completed over the past four years. Because of your industry success, your dedication to community service, and your leading-edge projects, I am very interested in pursuing a position within your organization.

Currently, I am participating in a consulting project focused on staffing issues through an internship with City of Dallas, Texas. The project involves conducting research on large, urban centers throughout the United States and comparing recruiting and retention programs. Through this internship, I have gained a greater knowledge of workforce issues as well as innovative and creative human resources initiatives. In addition to my internship, I have served as the Vice President for Membership for two of the student organizations on campus, the Memorial Student Center Hospitality and the APO service fraternity. Both of these groups participate in a number of recruiting activities to maintain and continually increase membership, including several new programs that I initiated over the past two years. As a result of these new programs, membership has increased for Hospitality by 15% and for APO by 8%. For more information, please see the enclosed resume.

In closing, I am genuinely interested in a position with XYZ Corporation. I look forward to having the opportunity to meet with you and to discuss my qualifications further. Please contact me at 123-456-7890 or jaggie@tamu.edu if you have any questions or would like additional information.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Josephina Aggie
